NEW INC, New Museum’s Cultural Incubator, Announces DEMO2023

Three-Day Festival Presenting New Media Exhibitions, Installations, Performances, and Talks at the New Museum and Venues Across New York City

New York, NY (March 16, 2023)—The New Museum’s cultural incubator NEW INC today announced the expansion of the annual Demo Day showcase into DEMO, a three-day festival presenting exhibitions, installations, performances, and talks by industry leaders and NEW INC members at the New Museum and partner venues across New York City. Running from June 21 to June 23, 2023, DEMO2023 will spotlight innovative projects led by twenty-five current NEW INC members, whose interdisciplinary work spans art, design, technology, science, and entrepreneurship.

Expanding on the concept of a “demo day,” a term borrowed from the private sector referring to the day when incubator members demonstrate their projects to potential backers, NEW INC inaugurated its Demo Day in 2016 to showcase member projects before an invite-only audience of creative directors, investors, curators, and industry leaders. DEMO2023 opens this process to the general public and offers an extended glimpse into the development of the next generation of creative design, technology, science, and social projects incubated at NEW INC.

Founded in 2014 as the first museum-led cultural incubator, NEW INC supports a cohort of approximately sixty creative practitioners each year with a values-driven program including professional development, mentorship, and community-building opportunities. The Year 9 members include participants in five tracks: Art & Code, considering the future of Internet-based art in collaboration with Rhizome; Collective Abundance, reconstructing social and public space through design and architecture; Creative Science, exploring modes of scientific inquiry to advance creativity and storytelling; Extended Realities, examining the artistic potentials for technology to blur the physical and digital worlds; and Future Memory, shaking up dominant historical narratives and re-defining the power communities hold.

At the New Museum, DEMO will feature presentations from five members in each track, with highlights including:

- Art & Code: Jackie Liu will present Chao Bing, a visual novel and video game based on childhood memories in the style of 90s CD-ROM storybook games.
- Collective Abundance: Melody Stein will present Studio VISIT, her community-centered design practice.
- Creative Science: María-Elena Pombo, working under the moniker Fragmentario, will present her speculative design project La Rentrada, a return of the Venezuelan diaspora in a post-petroleum, avocado seed based economy.
- Extended Realities: LaJuné McMillian will share her Black Movement Library, a library for activists, performers, and artists to create diverse Extended Reality projects.
- Future Memory: Morehshin Allahyari will show an in-progress film project currently in development in Egypt.

In addition to these individual presentations, each track will be featured in an offsite showcase at a partner venue, including:

- Art & Code Showcase at Dunkunsthalle in partnership with Rhizome
- Future Memory Showcase at the Center for Art, Research and Alliances (CARA)
- Extended Realities Showcase at ONX Studio in partnership with EY Metaverse Lab
- Creative Science Showcase at a location to be announced, supported by Science Sandbox
- Collective Abundance Showcase at a location to be announced

“In true NEW INC spirit, we’re incubating our flagship program and expanding it with the support of many of our peers and partners,” said Salome Asega, Director of NEW INC. “We’re thrilled to present DEMO in an expanded festival format that will highlight more of our member community alongside vibrant field voices in art, design, and technology.”

“After nearly ten years of NEW INC, we are excited to share the great work of our member community more broadly in this public forum,” added Lisa Phillips, Toby Devan Lewis Director of the New Museum.

Now in its ninth year, NEW INC supports a diverse range of creative practitioners through its unique member model. NEW INC members have been recognized as emerging leaders in their respective fields, which traverse art, technology, design, fashion, architecture, urban planning, education, and beyond. NEW INC alumni include Telfar, Stephanie Dinkins, Winslow Porter,
